
Interest- and profession- oriented programmes

Charles University offers comprehensive educational opportunities for the general public. The cornerstone of our lifelong learning activities are profession-oriented programmes designed to meet the needs of the global and rapidly evolving labour market, enhancing the competitiveness of our graduates. These programmes encompass a wide range of disciplines, including natural sciences, medicine, pharmacy, humanities, social sciences, and theological studies.

An integral part of lifelong learning at the University are also interest-oriented programmes. These not only provide meaningful leisure activities but also expand knowledge horizons, support personal growth, broaden perspectives, improve critical thinking, and increase civic engagement. In this way, they enhance the overall quality of life.
